

I-GAS FEE STRUCTURE

Revision 2b – July 2018

I-GAS Level 1

The CEA will provide:

Text books for the course, the Level 1 examination, marking of the examination, and a certificate of successful completion (allowing the candidate to progress to Level 2 and beyond). Total cost per candidate £200 (+VAT and P&P)

I-GAS Level 2

The Training Provider will set their own fees for the provision of training and assessment, these are currently between £400 - £650 for three days of training and £400 - £550 for the two days assessment, but any applicant must discuss this with their chosen training provider.

In addition, a CEA administration fee of £150 (+VAT) per candidate is payable by the candidate to the Training Provider (Providing the candidate has completed Level 1 I-GAS, if this is not the case (i.e the candidate has relevant qualifications/experience/exemptions where they don't need to take Level 1 I-GAS and they don't have the appropriate reference books) the CEA administration fee will be £200 (+VAT and P&P).

I-GAS Level 3

The Training Provider will set their own fees for the provision of training and assessment, these are currently between £400 - £650 for three days of training and £400 - £550 for the two days assessment, but any applicant must discuss this with their chosen training provider.

In addition, a CEA administration fee of £150 (+VAT) per candidate is payable by the candidate to the Training Provider (Providing the candidate has completed L1 I-GAS, if this is not the case (i.e the candidate has relevant qualifications/experience/exemptions where they don't need to take Level 1 I-GAS and they don't have the appropriate reference books) the CEA administration fee will be £200 (+VAT and P&P).

Training Providers

- Set their own fees for the Training Course in open competition with other approved providers;
- They are responsible for collecting the total fee from the candidate BEFORE the course and distributing the assessment and Certification elements of the total fee to the appropriate recipients;
- They are responsible for collecting a fully completed application form and evidence pack for each candidate before accepting them on a course, checking the evidence pack is complete, and returning it to the candidate if it is incomplete or deficient;
- They will provide training materials and handouts to candidates appropriate for the material being assessed;
- They will provide facilities and invigilation services for the exams and assessments at Level 2 & 3.
- They will confirm the names of successful candidates in order for the CEA to issue ID cards.

The CEA will

- Provide successful candidates with an ID card and certificate for the relevant Level of I-GAS accreditation.
- Invoice the Training Provider for the CEA administration fees at the commencement of each course, listing the names of the candidates attending.

Fees subject to amendment from time to time.

© CEA July 2018